Propos introductifs du Président de la République à l'occasion de l'entretien avec Kyriakos Mitsotakis, Premier ministre de la République hellénique.

Emmanuel MACRON

Thank you. Thank you, Mister Prime Minister Kyriákos. Thank all of you. I'm very happy and very proud to be here with my ministers and my delegations. I think what obviously the friendship between our two countries and the balance comes from over the centuries, but I think we are clearly transforming relationship.

Since 2021, given the, I mean, the challenges we are facing, we are building a new comprehensive partnership. It's indeed global and strategic partnership. It's different in security, obviously, that we will sign that from all different capacities. It's about energy, it's about economy, it's about culture, it's about innovation. This is why our partnership is so important, obviously for your country, which is at the forefront of some of the key challenges for the Europeans, but for our countries.

I want to tell you that my words yesterday and I expressed true commitment from France, and you can count on us. Thank you.
